Organ Prelude: J S Bach (1685-1750): 'These are the ten holy commandments' BWV 677

Organ Postlude: J S Bach (1685-1750): 'These are the ten holy commandments' BWV 678

When did we last hear a hymn about the Ten Commandments?

Luther did write one, fittingly in ten verses, with this introduction: 'these are the ten holy commandments which our Lord God gave us through Moses, his faithful servant, high on Mount Sinai'

Bach chose to double the five simple phrases of the melody to ten in a double canon. In the Baroque music, the canon represents the relationship between followed/follower, or master/disciple. The piece as a whole exudes a warm, pastoral atmosphere, in spite of it's complexity.

"I will delight in your decrees" says Psalms 119:16, so it comes as no surprise that after the serene, pastoral setting of Luther's hymn, Bach wrote an extremely lively piece in the same key, in order to emphasize the happiness behind the actually very serious theme.
