Today's Organ Music

Organ Prelude: Felix-Alexandre Guilmant (1837-1911): Priere et Berceuse op. 27

Organ Postlude: Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750): Toccata and Fugue in d Minor, BWV 565

Guilmant's Priere and Berceuse is a tender and lovingly description of a mother praying and singing a lullaby to her sleepy child. Brings to mind EG White's words: 'The mother's work is given her of God, to bring up her children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. The love and fear of God should ever be kept before their tender minds.'

There is no other composition associated with the organ as the Toccata and Fugue in d Minor. Ironically, although we are not certain that it was composed by Bach, today it is viewed as a dramatic and bold piece with the opening bars descending like lightning, the broken chords resembling long rolls of thunder, with the triplets offering a stormy undulation. The continuous ascending and descending masses of chords create a palpable impact, subsequently abating to a measure of balance through the fugue. The dramatic finale resorts to flying scales and the full power of the organ.
